Madonna University Welcome Party

Friday, September 9th was a special day for new students at Madonna University. In the evening, there was a party for first year students and international students. There were many fun games and lots of good food. Many of the international students were able to try hot dogs, chips, cookies, and other American favorites. There were outside activities like volleyball, Frisbee toss, and an inflatable obstacle course. New international students were able to talk with other American students. They are really excited to start classes at Madonna University and to make new friends with American students in the dorms. Heavy rain arrived and the party had to end early. To the new international students: welcome to Madonna University. We wish you good luck in your classes this year! We hope you have fun while you are here in Michigan.

Aya Higuchi and Eiko Sugiura

ISO's Students of the Month

Madonna University would like to welcome two international students from Japan: Aya Higuchi and Eiko Sugiura. They will be here on campus for one semester.

Aya attended school in Japan for two years before deciding to attend a university in America. She likes to watch soccer and movies. She also likes to go shopping and talk with friends. In America she wants to "learn about American culture, lifestyle, and food". She would also like to improve her English.

Eiko also attended school in Japan before deciding to take classes at Madonna. She likes to play tennis, listen to music, and watch movies. She wants to learn more about American culture, and practice English so she can get a good job. She hopes to teach American students at Madonna about Japanese culture. She likes America because "Americans are nice people and very friendly".

How to Stay Safe in America

Madonna University wants to provide you with a safe and secure environment in which to pursue your academic and social goals.

"Better safe than sorry," goes the American saying. No matter how safe your campus and community appear to be, you should acquaint yourself with your new environment by reading the safety information your institution provides. Upon arrival, begin orienting yourself:

- Familiarize yourself with your neighborhood and campus by walking around in the daylight.
- Ask fellow students or staff members about areas you should avoid at night.
- Do not walk alone at night.
- Note the address and telephone of your country's nearest consulate or embassy.
- Locate the police station that serves your neighborhood.
(Livonia Police Department: 15050 Farmington Rd. Livonia, MI 48154: 734-466-2470)
- Locate the nearest fire-alarm box and learn how to report a fire.
- Identify the hospital emergency room nearest to your home and know what to do in case of an accident. (St. Mary Mercy Livonia: 36475 Five Mile Livonia, Michigan 48154: 734-655-4800)

The majority of Michigan immigrants are from India, China, Mexico, and Canada.

Chinese Mid-Autumn Moon Festival (zhōng qiū jié):

The Mid-Autumn Festival, also called the Moon Festival, is a Chinese holiday celebrated the 15th day of the 8th lunar month (this year, it is September 12th). Family members and friends eat moon cakes and go outside to view the bright mid-autumn harvest moon.

Moon cakes have fillings of lotus seed paste, and duck egg yolks to represent the moon. They were used to pass secret messages during the fight against Mongol rule in the 14th century. On the night of the Moon Festival rebels got rid of the Mongols and started the Ming Dynasty.

A famous story told during the Moon festival is "Chang E and the Jade Rabbit". Chang E's husband Hou Yi helped the Emperor and was given a pill of immortality. He hid it in his home, but while he was gone on a trip, his wife found the pill and swallowed it. She flew to the moon but could not get back home. The rabbit on the moon with Chang E is forced to try and make another pill so she can go back to Earth. Every year on the Mid-Autumn festival day, Hou Yi is allowed to visit his wife on the moon.
